TEXT FOR ANTHEM: WHEN LOVE REIGNS FREE

Oh, life is bitter, and life is dear, it flows through peace and misery,
Yet conquers death and loses fear when love reigns free.
When love we crave as our reward for service to the needy,
When measure for measure we count the score, our love dies speedily.
For love that's taken in exchange is not love at all, but barter
And did the need for our goods change, we find ourselves the loser.

I prayed, "Dear God, please send me forth to prove my love in battle
And show me worthy of Your love and wear your price my mantle.
"My little child, sit still," 'twas said, "Still as the stars above you,
And rest a while right here instead, and simply, let Me love you."

"For I'll not give My love to you for all you deeds of duty,
Nor for your strength of truth proclaimed, nor for your gifts of beauty.
But for a simple humble heart, but for the blessing of you,
I give My love for love alone, so simply let Me love you!"

Oh, life is bitter and life is dear, it flows through peace and misery,
Yet conquers death and loses fear when love reigns free.
